LIFE AT CAMP MERRITT.

Capt. Whitthorne of Company B, is Called the "Gallant Captain."

Lieut. Fowler is Hard at Work—Mathers, Wives, Sisters, Sweethearts, Write Often and Affectionately to Your Boys.

CAMP MERRITT, SAN FRANCISCO, CAL., July 16, 1898.—To the Herald:—My time and talent are limited, but I will try to comply with the editor's request for a few items of life at our camp. Sister "Barbara" need not fear that I am branching out into the literary world with a thought of outstripping her, nor to crowd her out of the HERALD columns. She seems to have given up writing, and I am only writing in her space.

Our little city of white tents, pitched on the coast of the Pacific, is a place of interest, but it is difficult to know just what items to select. Tents of men from the South and North lie close together. But now they are as one body, with one God, one flag, one chief, one purpose, marching side by side under the flag that knows no defeat.

We grow impatient to go into active service, where Tennessee soldiers will do honor to her country and state. The bullet-riddled flag we have, a relic of valorous deeds done more than a quarter of a century ago, brings tears to the eyes of the old veterans, for it tells many sad stories, and with less courage will the sons of these veterans defend their beautiful new banner with its stars and stripes.

Our sight-seeing is limited, yet we have seen some interesting things. The General has "Chinese Village" gave us a miniature idea of the "Chinatown" here. The "licensed" guide explained all we saw as we passed through. We went into their city beneath the ground, with their streets but about two feet wide, the houses outlining the streets. We saw the most smoke their opium pipes and fall into that idiotic degrading sleep. The houses and streets were so filled with the opium smoke that we were glad to get into the fresh air again, and thanked our stars we were not Chinese.

Our drills employ most of our time and are regular—the monotony of the "lying down," and "kneeling" being frequently broken by the soldier finding himself on a cactus or a snake, both which are found in abundance on the hills. Then comes a Comanche yell. We miss our pet and mascot, "Rags," the beautiful little dog we brought from Tennessee. Nothing could keep him from going out with the company to drill, and he always marched at the head of the line.

The cold, damp climate serves the Tennessee boys badly. The Colonel of the New York regiment that arrived a few days ago and were encamped near us, telegraphed to Washington that he could not move his soldiers back to N. Y. if they were not given a better place to camp. They were at once moved to the Presidio. Our Colonel should do as much in our behalf, for our men are contracting colds that are proving serious. Several officers have put stoves in their tents.

Our mess tent has arrived, and we cook take time about sleeping there. It is an improvement on our own tents. For a while there were 12 men in our tent—12 guns, blankets, clothing, canteens, knaps and haversacks, etc., had to go in too. When a man wished to turn over at night, he would yell out "Squad wake up."—"Squad Ready!"—"Squad right (or left) turn!" and all would turn over at once. There was no such thing as sleeping on one's back. There is more prose than poetry in such a life as this.

Our mess tent relieves us of much inconvenience from the sand, which we couldn't even keep out of our food. Yet that is all right, we guess, for they say a true soldier must have grit. We are mighty true, for sand has entered the pores of our skin, we've breathed it, and it serves as part thickening for our soup. We are on cook duty now. You should see the ladies wash as they wash and see us cooking and washing dishes, or doing our laundry work. A wash-board is a terrible thing! They ask for our recipes, but they never bring us any dishes prepared after our directions. We would be washing dishes right this minute, but I not bribed a fellow with a piece of tobacco to do it for me. Tobacco and money will bring you the most excellent aid in getting up. We still have about a car-load of Nashville crackers we have to draw on, though they are getting very stale.

We were given our rubber pouches yesterday. They can be used as coats, blankets can be rolled in them to keep them dry on the march, and four of them make a very nice tent. They belong to us, and can carry them home with us.

The Government gives us gun, belt, bayonet and scabbard, canteen, knaps and haversacks, one blanket, one snit of blue, and one suit of brown duck, one hat, one pair of leggings, one pair suspenders, two suits of underwear, one cap, one pair of white duck trousers, one pair of white gloves, three pairs of socks, two blue and two white shirts, two collars, shoes, knife, fork, spoon, tin cup and tin plate. The "white" garments and cap are used only on "dress parade." Each man is held responsible for what he has, and if anything is lost the price of it is taken out of his wages on pay-day.

The boys look handsome in their new uniforms. The officers have the brown uniforms too, but theirs have more "trimming" on them than ours, consequently they present a better appearance.

The guard-house is the main place of punishment, and it is never empty. Every morning the prisoners are carried before the court-martial for trial. Yesterday two of Company F's boys were walking down the street and a lady asked them where they were from. One said "From the South." The other, thinking he would receive more favor said "I am from the North." Whereupon the lady handed the "Southerner" forty-two two-cent stamps. The "Northern boy" says hereafter he will be sure to say "I am from Tennessee." "The Tennessee boys get all the favors," wait the other soldiers.

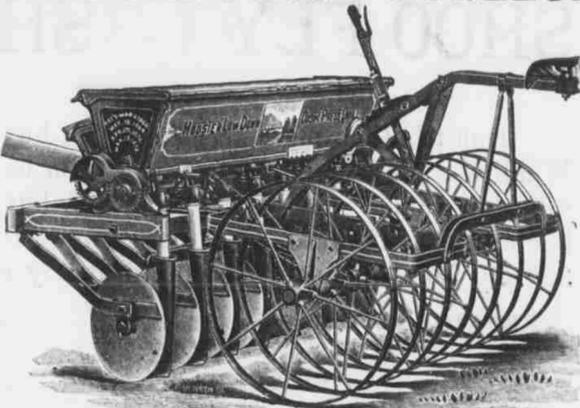

The Maury Countians are by no means lacking in loyalty and patriotism. They are sturdy, manly fellows. Capt. Whitthorne and Lieut. Fowler have been very kind to this Maury County boy, and we appreciate it. We take not the credit to ourselves, but give it to our brother, the late George C. Taylor, for whose sake much of the kindness is shown us.

Capt. Whitthorne is still "the gallant Captain," and the ladies do not forget it. A few days ago he received an immense bouquet of magnificent flowers, with a card, on which was written "With the compliments of the Ladies of St. James Mission Aid Society to Capt. Whitthorne, because of his kindness to his men."

Lieut. Fowler is working hard and devoting himself to his well-performed duties. He and Capt. Whitthorne are also on General Court Martial at Division Headquarters.

Lieut. Ragsdale and First Lieut. Cahler are doing good work. Corporals H. Brown and R. R. Cook are popular men. Co. B. has 106 members and they are becoming one of the best drilled corps in the camp. They also have a nice "guard-tent" and the men find it a haven on their relief hours on these cold damp nights.

This letter is rather long, but I promise to be more brief next time. Mothers, sisters, sweethearts, write promptly, affectionately, often to your boys, for they will soon be across the ocean. ERLE C. TAYLOR, Co. F. First Tenn. Reg.

Attempt to Wreck Train. An attempt was made to wreck an L. & N. passenger train near Glasgow Junction, Ky., last Monday. Five tramps, supposed to be the parties, were placed under arrest.

Embezzled $640,000. Lewis Warner, a defaulting banker of North Hampton, Mass., was caught in Louisville last Saturday after being chased for three months. Warner had embezzled upward of $640,000.
